WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Medford Weather:

After several days of very warm temperatures and dry conditions there will be increasing chances of precipitation over the next several days and temperatures will be lowering steadily each day. Today lingering warm surface temperatures will combine with energy aloft to generate a chance of thunderstorms for much of the forecast area.

Eureka Weather:

A series of upper level low pressure troughs will propagate across the region this week. These low pressure troughs will gradually cool temperatures through this weekend and produce a slight chance to chance for showers across the area Thursday night and Friday.

Reno Weather:

High pressure will keep temperatures well above average through Thursday with westerly afternoon breezes. On Wednesday there will be a slight chance for a few showers near the Oregon border, otherwise the forecast will be dry through Thursday. A colder and wetter system will bring increased wind Thursday and Friday with better chances for rain and mountain snow Friday into the weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

A gradual cooling trend will continue through Thursday as an upper level system pushes inland to the north of the region. A stronger system will approach the coast Thursday night into Friday and bring increased chances for rain showers. Dry weather conditions along with temperatures near seasonal averages are then expected for the upcoming weekend.

Sacramento Weather:

Gradual cooling is expected across the region today and Thursday. A stronger weather system will bring a better chance of showers to much of northern California on Friday.

WEATHER

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

Upper level high pressure will gradually weaken this week allowing for a strong cold frontal system to move into the region on Friday and Friday night. A weak low pressure system will move across Northern California on Monday. Weak high pressure returns Tuesday with another strong cold front expected on Wednesday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

A slight cooling trend will continue through today as high pressure weakens and onshore flow returns. More significant cooling expected Thursday through this weekend. Low clouds and fog with more significant cooling are slated for Thursday and Friday. A weak storm system will move into the region by Friday bringing a chance of showers with the best chances north of Point Conception.

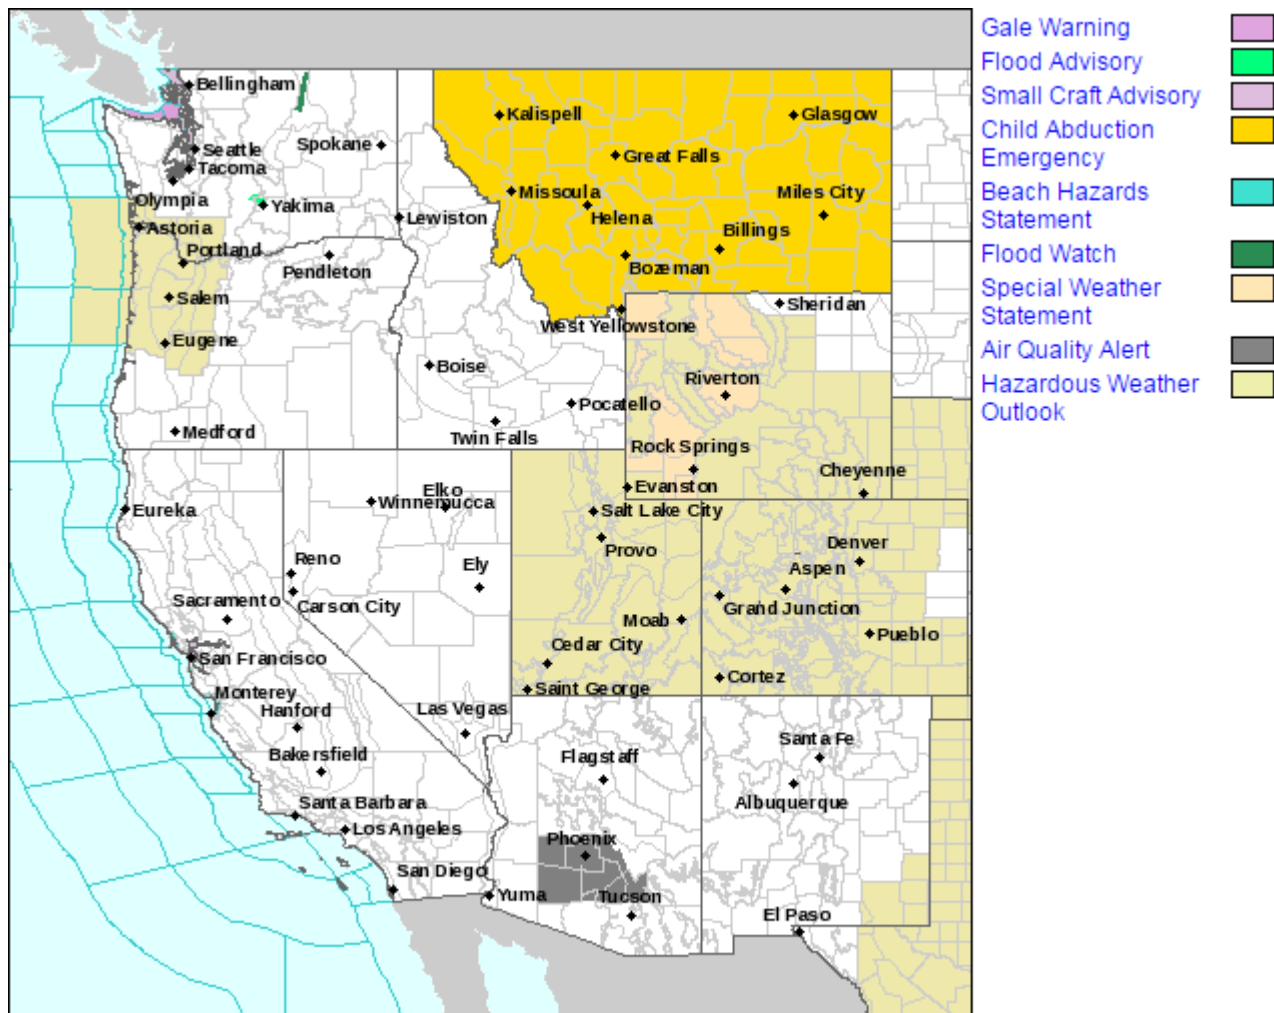

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Warm and dry weather will continue through Thursday with daily high temperatures lowering slightly each day west of the mountains. More significant and widespread cooling can be expected on Friday with showers possible mainly over and west of the mountains Friday evening into early Saturday along with gusty west winds in the mountains and deserts. The cooler weather will continue over the weekend. Another weak storm may arrive Monday.

Southeast California Weather:

Strengthening high pressure will bring clear skies and a warming trend to the region through Thursday with highs close to 100 degrees at the warmest lower desert locations today and Thursday. A series of pacific low pressure systems will bring cooler temperatures but little chances of any rainfall to the region Friday through at least the early part of next week.
